The screenshot shows the Obsidian community plugins interface. On the left, a sidebar lists several plugins: Git (by Vinzent, 3M downloads, updated 7 days ago), Ink (by Dale de Silva, 183k downloads, updated a month ago), Heatmap Calendar (by richardsl, 172k downloads, updated 2 years ago), and Webpage HTML Export (by kosmosisdire, 149k downloads, updated a year ago). The main panel displays the details for the Git plugin. It includes the plugin name, version (2.39.0), author (Vinzent), repository link (https://github.com/vinzent03/obsidian-git), and last update (7 days ago). A description states: "Integrate Git version control with automatic backup and other advanced features." Below this are buttons for "Install", "Copy share link", and "Donate". The section Obsidian Git Plugin describes it as a powerful community plugin for Obsidian.md that brings Git integration into the vault, allowing for automatic commit, pull, push, and viewing changes. A Documentation section provides setup instructions and a warning for mobile users that the plugin is highly unstable. A Key Features section lists: Automatic commit-and-sync, Auto-pull on Obsidian startup, Submodule support, and Source Control View.

Obsidian Git Plugin

A powerful community plugin for Obsidian.md that brings Git integration right into your vault. Automatically commit, pull, push, and see your changes — all within Obsidian.

Documentation

All setup instructions (including mobile), common issues, tips, and advanced configuration can be found in the full documentation.

Mobile users: The plugin is highly unstable ! Please check the dedicated Mobile section below.

Key Features

- Automatic commit-and-sync (commit, pull, and push) on a schedule.
- Auto-pull on Obsidian startup
- Submodule support for managing multiple repositories (desktop only and opt-in)
- Source Control View to stage/unstage, commit and diff files - Open it with the `open source_control_view_command`

When finishing work open Git panel, stage your changes and commit them with sync (push + pull of changes to remote) + don't forget to write your commit message.
